

Aeneid Reading Excerpts

January 26, 2020

1 LIBER PRIMVS

Book One: Safe Haven After Storm

1.1 Line 202

Revocate animos, maestumque timorem mittite: forsan et haec olim meminisse iuvabit. Per varios casus, per tot discrimina rerum tendimus in Latium; sedes ubi fata quietas ostendunt; illic fas regna resurgere Troiae. Durate, et vosmet rebus servate secundis.

maestus a. sad, sorrowful forsan adv. perhaps olim adv. at that time; once upon a time; one day

memini -isse I remember

iuvabit 3rd singular future active indicative of iuvo casus casus n. fall; accident; misfortune; (grammar) case tot so many

discrimen -mimis n. distinction; division; crisis sedes -dis f. seat; place, settlement quietus ppp of quiesco. at rest; peaceful; tranquil ostendo -dere, -di, -tum I expose to view, exhibit fas n. divine law; the will of God

Translation Call up your courage again. Dismiss your grief and fear. A joy it will be one day, perhaps, to remember even this. Through so many hard straits, so many twists and turns our course holds firm for Latium. There Fate holds out a homeland, calm, at peace. There the gods decree the kingdom of Troy will rise again. Bear up. Save your strength for better time to come.

1.2 Line 278

His ego nec metas rerum nec tempora pono; imperium sine fine dedi.

his plural masculine dative of hic. for them

meta -ae f. boundary limit dedi 1st singular perfect indicative active of do

Translation On them I set no limits, space or time: I have granted them power, empire without end.

1.3 Line 286

Nascetur pulchra Troianus origine Caesar, imperium oceano, famam qui terminet astris.

nascetur 3rd singular future active indicative of nascor termino -are, -avi, -atum I mark off; I define; I finish, end. terminet 3rd singular present active subjunctive

Translation From that noble blood will arise a Trojan Caesar, his empire bound by the Ocean, his glory by the stars.

1.4 Line 381

Bis denis Phrygium conscendi navibus aequor, matre dea monstrante viam, data fata secutus.

bis adv. twice

deni a. pl. ten each

aequor -ris f. even surface; the sea matre dea monstrante viam (ablative absolute) monstro -are, -avi, -atum I show, indicate; I advise. monstrans pap

secutus ppp of sequor

Translation I launched out on the Phrygian sea with twenty ships, my goddess mother marking the way, and followed hard on the course the Fates had charted.

1.5 Line 461

En Priamus! Sunt hic etiam sua praemia laudi.

praemium -i n. reward

laus laudis f. praise, glory. dative of reference laudi

Translation There's Priam, look! Even here, merit will have its true reward.

1.6 Line 627

Quare agite, O tectis, iuvenes, succedite nostris. Me quoque per multos similis fortuna labores iactatam hac demum voluit consistere terra. Non ignara mali, miseris succurrere disco.

tectum -i n. roof; ceiling; canopy demum adv. finally multos labores (object of per) voluit 3rd singular perfect indicative active of volo consisto -sistere, -stiti, -stitum I stop; I agree with; I continue Translation So come, young soldiers, welcome to our house. My destiny, harrying me with trials hard as yours, led me as well, at last, to anchor in this land. Schooled in suffering, now I learn to comfort those who suffer too.

1.7 Line 753

‘Immo age, et a prima dic, hospes, origine nobis insidias,’ inquit, ‘Danaum, casusque tuorum, erroresque tuos; ...’

a prima origine from the very beginning hospes hospitis m. host; guest; stranger insidia -ae f. ambush

error erroris m. wandering; wavering

Translation “Wait, come, my guest,” she urges, “tell us your own story, start to finish - the ambush laid by the Greeks, the pain your people suffered, the wanderings you have faced.”

2 LIBER SECVNDVS

Book Two: The Final Hours of Troy

2.1 Line 2

Infandum, regina, iubes renovare dolorem, Troianas ut opes et lamentabile regnum eruerint Danai, quaeque ipse miserrima vidi et quorum pars magna fui.

infandus a. unspeakable ops opis f. sg. strength, power; pl. wealth

eruo -ere, -i, -tum I cast or throw out

Translation Words can't express, my queen, what you bid me to relive, all the rueful pain: telling how the Danaans destroyed Troy's wealth and its power makes for a dirge of lament. Heartbreaking events. And I saw them, I was a major part of them all.

2.2 Line 8

et iam nox umida caelo praecipitat suadentque cadentia sidera somnos.

umidus a. humid

praecipito -are, -avi, -atum I cast down; I throw headlong suadeo -dere, -si, -sum I urge; I suade cadentia plural present participle neuter nominative of cado

sidus sidera, n. star

somnus -i, m. sleep

Translation And, besides, night is shedding dew from sky, and stars as they fade persuade us to slumber.

2.3 Line 54

et, si fata deum, si mens non laeva fuisset, impulerat ferro Argolicas foedare latebras, Troiaque nunc staret, Priamique arx alta maneres.

mens mentis, f. mind

laevus a. left; awkward; unlucky

fuisset subjunctive pluperfect 3rd sg. of sum impello -ellere, -uli, -ulsum I push; I impel.

foedō -are, -avi, -atum I make foul or filthy; I pollute; I disgrace laetebra -ae, f. hiding place; lair

Translation Had not god-given fates, divine mind (and our own) been against us, that would have driven our swords to turn Argive lair into bloodbath, Troy would endure to this day; you'd still stand, fortress of Priam.

2.4 Line 92

adflictus vitam in tenebris luctuque trahebam affligo -igere, -ixi, -ictum I strike; I afflict

luctus luctus, m. grief

Translation I was crushed too; and I trudged through life in the dark grip of anguish.

2.5 Line 195

Talibus insidiis periurique arte Sinonis credita res, captique dolis lacrimisque coactis quos neque Tydides nec Larisaeus Achilles, non anni domuere decem, non mille carinae.

talīs a. such insidiae -arum f. pl. ambush, plot

dolus -i, m. trick

cogo cogere, coegi, coactum I collect; I force

domo -are, -ui, -itum I tame; I subdue.

Translation So spoke Sinon, an artist in perjury, setting his ambush. And we believed him. He fooled us with well-staged weeping and ruses, conquering men neither Tydeus' sons nor Larissa's Achilles, not even war's ten years and its thousand vessels could vanquish.

2.6 Line 294

hos cape fatorum comites, his moenia quaere magna pererrato statues quae denique ponto.

pererrato ponto the sea having been traversed denique adv. finally

Translation Take them as fate's fellow travellers, find great walls to protect them, walls you will build when your sea-borne wanderings reach their conclusion.

2.7 Line 316

furor iraque mentem praecipitat, pulchrumque mori succurrit in armis.

praecipito -are, -avi, -atum I cast down

succurro -urrere, -urri, -ursum I come to mind

Translation Wrath and fury have jettisoned reason. Taking its place is a slogan: that death, under arms, has its beauty.

2.8 Line 351

excessere omnes adytis arisque relictis di quibus imperium hoc steterat; succurritis urbi incensae. moriamur et in media arma ruamus. una salus victis nullam sperare salutem.

excesserunt or excessere 3rd plural perfect indicative active of excedo adytum -i, n. shrine

ara -ae, f. altar

relictus ppp. of relinquo

incendo -endere, -endi, -ensum I set on fire ruo ruere, rui, rutum I rush salus salutis, f. safety; well-being; salvation; greeting

Translation All those gods, on whose strength this empire stood, have forsaken altars and shrines. They're all gone. You are running to save an already burned city. So let's die, let's rush to the thick of the fighting. There's just one way to live with defeat: Don't hope to outlive it!

2.9 Line 656

nam quod consilium aut quae iam fortuna dabatur?

aut or

Translation What other course did fortune allow? What choice was I granted?

2.10 Line 668

arma, viri, ferte arma; vocat lux ultima victos. reddite me Danais; sinite instaurata revisam proelia. numquam omnes hodie moriemur inulti.

sino sinere, sivi, situm I allow instauero -are, -avi, -atum I repeat; I renew; I restore proelium -i, n. battle

Translation Arms, men, stand to your arms! Life's last day summons the vanquished! Throw me upon the Danaans again, let me go back and restart combat. Never shall all of us die this day without vengeance.

2.11 Line 682

ecce levis summo de vertice visus Iuli fundere lumen apex.

levis a. light, swift visus ppp. of video (with apex) fundo fundere, fudi, fusum I pour.

Translation Look, a slim halo of light seems to shine from the crown of Iulus' head.

2.12 Line 725

ferimur per opaca locorum.

Translation On we go through the darkest of places.

2.13 Line 780

longa tibi exsilia et vastum maris aequor arandum, et terram Hesperiam venies, ubi Lydius arva inter opima virum leni fluit agmine Thybris.

vastus a. empty; vast aequor -is, n. even surface; sea aro -are, -avi, -atum I plow arvum -i, n. field; farm land opimus a. fertile

lenis a. soothe, gentle agmen agminis, n. a train of something; line; stream, current Translation Long years of exile await; you must plough vast stretches of salt sea. Then you will reach the Hesperian land, where the Lydian Tiber flows a straight course without waves amid farmlands fruitful and peopled.

2.14 Line 792

ter conatus ibi collo dare bracchia circum; ter frustra comprehensa manus effugit imago, par levibus ventis volucrique simillima somno.

conor conari, conatus sum I attempt collum -i, n. neck

frustra adv. in vain

comprehensus ppp. of comprehendo

imago imaginis, f. image, ghost ventus venti, m. wind volucer -cris, -cre flying; winged similis a. similar (comp. similior, superl. simillimus; + dat.)

Translation Three times I tried to encircle her neck with my arms as I stood there, three times, alas, all in vain. For the image eluded my grasping hands, like a slight puff of air, as a dream flutters off from a dreamer.

3 LIBER TERTIVS

Book Three: Landfalls, Ports of Call